

AGE DRAWS PEACE TO COLE YOUNGER

Former Outlaw Twice Attends
Church on First Sunday
After Joining.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 26.—Cole Younger Sunday passed his first day as a Christian by going to church twice. It is real religion, and not show religion, that Cole Younger has. He is not going to preach, nor be an evangelist, nor make any sensational display of his Christianity.

"I've just simply made my peace with God, and the rest of my days I want to live a quiet, simple, Christian life," the former bandit said.

He was sitting in the shade on the porch of the cottage in Lee's Summit that he bought and gave to his niece, Miss Nora Hall, smoking a pipe, and there was a look of deep earnestness and tenderness in his face when he said:

"I've led an adventurous, turbulent life. The war brought on hate and strife and killing around here. They murdered my father when I was a schoolboy, and I was launched into a life of reprisals and shooting and rough-riding, winding up with 25 years in prison. Now, my folks were all Christians. I was brought up in a Christian home. And now I am an old man—70 next January—and I've come by God's mercy back to this spot, where I spent my childhood, to end my days."

"Why, I ran barefoot all over where these streets are. My father owned 10,000 acres of land in this county and we lived just north of where we are sitting now, and I ranged here as a boy."

The old outlaw, six feet tall, 260 pounds in weight, with his strong, forceful looking face, sat there talking in a low voice, tenderly, but earnestly.

In the tabernacle of the Christian church, where 200 children met in Sunday school, Cole Younger sat back where a breeze blew in an open window and he took off his coat to be more comfortable, but when the preaching began he put his coat on and moved down in front and joined in the singing.

He went to meeting again Sunday night, and when the evangelist asked him to pray, he stood up and repeated the Lord's prayer.

"That was my first public prayer," he said afterward. "Not my first prayer, by any means, mind you. I've often prayed to myself."

"My grandfather Fristoe used to ask me if I ever prayed before I went into battle. I told her I always did, which was true. I never rode where the bullets were whistling around me without murmuring a prayer. But I did not tell dear old grandma that in 10 minutes after I got into a fight I was cussin' loud enough to be heard a mile."

"She intended me to be a preacher, but I missed it. But I always intended to be a Christian. In my early life I laid out to do three things—marry, become a Mason and a Christian—but I never had time to do either till now. I loved a girl, but the war came on and I lost her, and that's bottled up forever now and I've never loved another."

"I never became a Mason because I never had a chance until after I came out of prison, and then I did not dare to try it for fear that some one, remembering my past record, would put in a black ball against me, and that would break my heart."

"Now I am a Christian. I've accomplished one of the things I set out to do, at any rate, and the greatest of them."
